

THE AMERICAN FERTILITY ASSOCIATION (AFA) IS A NATIONAL ORGANIZATION DEDICATED TO EDUCATING, SUPPORTING AND ADVOCATING FOR MEN AND WOMEN CONCERNED WITH REPRODUCTIVE AND SEXUAL HEALTH, FERTILITY PRESERVATION, INFERTILITY AND ALL FORMS OF FAMILY BUILDING.

The AFA helps individuals and couples experiencing reproductive difficulties get the help they need as quickly as possible. We also serve as a resource for the medical practices and professionals that work to help build families.

The AFA's 2007 National Fertility and Adoption Resource Directory is designed as a one-stop guide for anyone concerned about fertility or interested in adoption. It includes articles highlighting the latest issues affecting men and women, like PCOS and female and male factor infertility.

This year's edition also features expanded Physician and Therapist Referral lists, which offer a quick glance at fertility specialists in different cities throughout the nation. To be eligible for our lists, practices provided The AFA with certain qualifying criteria including services, staff and history. For information regarding eligibility for either list, please call us at (888) 917-4777.

This Directory includes paid advertisements that have not been screened or edited by The AFA. Inclusion of advertisements in this Directory is not and should not be considered an endorsement or recommendation from The AFA.

THE 2007 DIRECTORY ALSO INCLUDES:

- Listings of services in all the areas associated with reproductive health and family building, including medical practices, adoption agencies, pharmacies, therapists, egg and sperm donor programs, surrogacy programs, and others.
- Helpful information about important issues associated with family building hurdles, including adoption, third party reproduction, telling friends and family about infertility and much more.
